

Have you seen this guy?

If you have visited the bakery at your local Wal-Mart Supercenter lately, you may have seen this guy. Chris Plunkett has been traveling across the Eastern section of the United States a lot these days, installing and demonstrating the Belshaw Thermoglaze Donut System. Chris has been and continues to train bakery employees on this most current and up to date technology in donut production. All this experience is also available to you and your staff. He is a wealth of information for your equipment maintenance and training needs for your independent bakery as well.

We not only offer parts and service for Belshaw, we represent other food service companies, too many to list. Since the inception of BakeryParts.com, there has been continued growth in the need for qualified, professional service and maintenance of equipment to all areas of the food service industry. As the exclusive distributor for Spartan Ovens and Proofers we continue to offer all parts for these exceptional pieces of equipment.
